AD WRITING DOWN TO A REAL SCIENCE

Psychologists to Take Up the Business and Study of It Prof. Ricker Talks.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 4.—The business of "ad" writing is now to receive the attention of the scientists. Prof. Charles Sherwood Ricker, of the Harvard department of psychology, is quoted here today as follows:

"In a few years psychologists will reduce to an exact science the method of composing advertisements so as to obtain the highest number of answers. Every 'ad' makes a certain impression upon the eye and this is conveyed to the mind. The will power is swayed and governed by these sensory impressions. If the sensory impressions are vivid and compelling enough, they cause the will center of the brain to act, thus forcing the reader to write and answer."

"For the purpose of experimenting and research, persons will be selected at Harvard from all walks of life, of both sexes and of widely varying grades of intelligence, and education and they will be studied with the use of different advertisements with assorted type, styles and arrangements. By the same means the psychology department will investigate the proper newspapers and magazines in which to place advertisements, in order to get best returns."

The railroad statistics of the United States show that the automobile industry has supplied over eight million dollar in annual revenue for the transportation of machines, supplies and accessories. The perfecting of the automobile business has unquestionably made big profits for the railroad of this country," said General Manager F. L. Holmes, of the Jackson Automobile company, today. Mr. Holmes, who comes from Jackson Mich., has been in the city looking up the matter of auto interstate commerce. Continuing, he said: "The railroads have profited largely by the development of the automobile industry, as they would naturally profit by the success and extensive shipment of any product; but the automobile business has been exceptionally productive of revenue for the railroads, which should take this into consideration in their high schedule of rates. An automobile factory pays for ten times as many freight cars and at a much higher rate than a carriage factory producing an equal number of horse drawn vehicles, and something like 100,000 freight cars leave the automobile factories a year. These shipments cover a scattered territory, but if one could strike an average distance that the cars were hauled, it indicates the railroads earn $8,000,000 annually. The express companies alone earn nearly a million dollars carrying tires, factory supplies and accessories by which the railroads also profit. Hundreds of thousands of travelers use the railroads for passenger service annually to go to automobile shows, races, etc., all of which traffic is directly due to the automobile. The traffic managers should take all this into consideration in dealing with the automobile public."

Card of Thanks.

We beg permission through the columns of your paper to express, in a small way, the gratitude of our hearts to the many friends of our wife and mother, for their help, love and sympathy in the darkest hour that has ever settled on our home.

Words fail us, you have been so kind and good when our very lives were so crushed by the sudden stroke that made our home so dark, your deeds of kindness and words of cheer have done much to dispel our gloom and take from our minds and hearts the heavy load that pressed us down.

To all of our many friends who have in any way ministered to us in our great grief, we wish, from the deep gratitude of our hearts to thank you.

GRANULATED EYE LIDS.

A DEAD STOMACH. OF WHAT USE IS IT?

Thousands? Yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily. They are murdering their own stomach, the best friend they have, and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.

This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will not deny. These thousands of people are swallowing daily huge quantities of pepsin and other strong digesters, made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach. Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes; they do more. Taken regular for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and by Haynes & Taylor who guarantees them. 50 cents a box. Booth's Pills cure constipation, 25 cents.

Have You Tried?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? We can furnish positive proof that it has made many remarkable cures after all other means had failed.

Women who are suffering with some form of female illness should consider this.

As such evidence read these two unsolicited testimonial letters. We guarantee they are genuine and honest statements of facts.

Cresson, Pa.—"Five years ago I had a bad fall, and hurt myself inwardly. I was under a doctor's care for nine weeks, and when I stopped I grew worse again. I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, took it as directed, and now I am a stout, hearty woman."—Mrs. Ella E. Aikey, Cresson, Pa.

Baird, Wash.—"A year ago I was sick with kidney and bladder troubles and female weakness. The doctors gave me up. All they could do was to just let me go as easily as possible. I was advised by friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. I am completely cured of my ills, and I am nearly sixty years old."—Mrs. Sarah Leighton, Baird, Wash.

Evidence like the above is abundant showing that the derangements of the female organism which breed all kinds of miserable feelings and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very disorders that give way to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are afflicted with similar troubles, after reading two such letters as the above, should be encouraged to try this wonderfully helpful remedy.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Mr. J. C. LEE, of 1100 Ninth St., S. E., Washington, D. C., writes:—"I advised a lady who was a great sufferer from neuralgia to try Sloan's Liniment. After one application the pain left her and she has not been troubled with it since."

MERCHANDISE

As our foreman, Mr. Cleveland Stone is quite sick with a severe case of measles, we get out the paper this week under great disadvantages. But somehow, some way, the "Old Record-Press" always comes out on time. With our force weakened by loss of our main man we were compelled to work day and night so if the paper is not what you would have it, just remember that we tried our best.

To those who have orders for paper and envelopes with us we will ask that you bear with us until our foreman can take his place again.

To our correspondents we desire to say that most of them are now signing their names and sending in good, newsy letters, and while it is true we are forced to leave many of them out this week, it is because we could not help it. Don't let this discourage you just as we have you in line and from nearly every neighborhood.

The Evansville Courier's souvenir edition, published Sunday, March 27, celebrating its sixty-fifth anniversary, is a superb newspaper. It consists of 72 pages. In this edition The Courier fully sustains its reputation as one of the most enterprising and resourceful newspapers in the country. The Courier is the favorite metropolitan paper in this part of the country, and goes into nearly every home in southern Indiana, western Kentucky and Southern Illinois.

RECENTLY, at the request of a Democrat we made known the fact as was handed in by him, and he is a good man and means well, that out of 24 petit jurors under Judge Little's appointment but 4 were democrats and but five of the twelve grand jurors were democrats, in other words, 9 out of 36. This you know did look one sided, and to please our friend we published it and later, to our horror found that we had forever disgraced two of the men naming a Republican that was a Democrat and a Democrat that was a Republican. This terrible error we deeply deplore and in the most humble way possible apologize to them. Then after the recent whole sale dehorning of this afore said grand and petit jury by Judge Gordon, we were approached by a trio of our good Democratic friends who were lamenting the fact that the Democrats had done worse in, that they had selected but three Republicans out of 24. But subsequently it develops, (so we are told and we were told all of it) that this is a mistake. That nine living true blue Republicans were actually on the last panel.

We were also mistaken in saying the commissioners were all Democrats, as it develops that Dan Riley is a Populist. As for us we like the commissioners and for that matter so do the Republicans, as one of the most stalwart and influential of them said to us that he would trust E. J. Hayward anywhere anytime. Now friends we have said all that you have read with a smile on our face, because both sides were chewing the rag and because we felt that both sides had a right to chew it.

If you want our opinion, it is this. It matters not what party the commission is selected from they should try to evenly divide honors. There is nothing wrong in this and a whole lot that is right.

Line Up For Pogue.

The action of the County Democratic Committee in passing a resolution putting it up to the Committee of Crittenden county to indorse, in alternating every four years, instead of every two, the nomination for representative thus making it possible for Hon. Marion F. Pogue to succeed himself if he so desires and his own county wishes it as a compliment that is deserving and merited by a worthy representative.

He is in line now for speaker of the next house and if he does not land the job we shall be very much disappointed, because no better Democrat or man lives within the State of Kentucky today. We are glad that our county Committee took this very appropriate and business step as the old rule was absolute and impracticable.

We congratulate Mr. Pogue and Crittenden county and we except the Committee of that county, now to do the rest. - Livingston Banner.

The Electric Theatre or moving picture show under the ownership and management of Mr. Sigler of Morganfield is one of the best we have ever attended. Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes inflamed and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the salivary complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results, is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address in Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

BOON BUSH NOW ON TRIAL FOR NIGHT RIDING

Jury is Composed of Twelve Good Men and Evenly Divided Politically.

In the case of the commonwealth against Boon Bush for complicity in the night rider raid of the night of Feb. 3rd, 1908, in which H. B. Bennett and Wm. Groves were unmercifully whipped and Bennett's factory burned the case is progressing slowly and with much less interest than was expected or than would have been but for the lapse of now more than two years.

Much care was given by both sides in the selection of the jury, nearly exhausting the special venire of sixty men from distant parts of the county before they were satisfied. At first glance the jury would impress even a stranger as a good one and evenly divided politically there exists no possible room or grounds for a kick. If the commonwealth and defense are satisfied surely the people should be.

The first witness for the commonwealth was Wm. Groves, one of the men so terribly punished on that memorable night. Mr. Groves gave a clear history of the attack on his home never faltering until coming to the point, where, while his home was being riddled with bullets and shot, every window shot out but one and even the plastering on the ceiling falling from the leaden hail, he decided to sacrifice his life to save his wife and children, his lip quivered and his eyes filled with tears. He said they whipped him with switches, one inches at the but, five feet long until they were mere stubs, less than two feet. When asked if he recognized any of the men he said he did not. He said they were about 150 strong.

H. B. Bennett who was perhaps the worst beat up man of the two and Sanford Hall, who turned states evidence were the only witnesses who claimed to identify any of the party. The fact that Tom Jones was set free by the other jury is proof enough that Hall's evidence must have been set aside, which fact gives grounds for the belief that the same will be done in the present case. And yet you can not tell what a jury will do. They are trying the case and not us.

Judge Gordon has presided so far in these two cases in an unbiased dignified way, with but few exceptions to his rulings from either side. He is the same judge under any and all circumstances where ever he goes, which fact makes him friends even among his political enemies.

Hon. Jno Gray and County Attorney Jno A. Moore have been tireless and unflinching in their efforts to bring out the evidence and their speeches before the jury were complimented by all. They are both able men and while of opposite political faith are as one when it comes to bringing the guilty to justice.

Judge L. H. James, Judge A. C. Moore and N. W. Utley made a gallant fight for an acquittal for Tom Jones and the fact that they won in so hard a fought battle is the best evidence of their ability and high rating as attorneys.

The evidence in the present case will probably be finished today and by Monday at the out side, Boon Bush will know what the jury thinks of him.

Mrs. Robinson, sister to Mrs. Bennett swore positively that she recognized Boon Bush and others and while she never at the time knew any by name, pointed them out in the court room.

H. B. Bennett and Sanford Hall testified positively that they recognized not only the accused but pointed out several others in the court room who were in the raid.

The Commonwealth has rested and the defense will introduce their witnesses in rebuttal.

OPPOSED COLORED CENSUS TAKERS

Our Congressman Ollie M. James Secured Change in Appointment in Kentucky.

Washington, D. C., March 31. —War against the appointment of colored census enumerators has broken out in Kentucky. Congressman Ollie M. James, Kentucky's silver tongued orator who electrified the Denver convention in his speech seconding the nomination of Bryan, yesterday made such a vigorous protest against the appointment of a negro as census enumerator in the Lovelace precinct, Ballard county, Kentucky, that the officials agreed forthwith to rescind the appointment.

Mr. James demanded that the appointment be retracted, that the white people of his district ought not to be "insulted and outraged" by having to give their census statistics to a negro. He contended further that it would be a violation of the census law.

EDITORIALS

The Legislature deserves one good long mark of credit for passing a bill prohibiting the drinking of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, on the railroad trains and giving the conductors police power to arrest any passenger who violates the law. Drunkenness and rowdiness on the passenger trains have caused a great deal of discomfort and annoyance to the respectable traveling public and in the last year resulted in the death of three conductors. The new law will work a hardship to no one, will prove a most salutary and helpful measure.—Elizabethtown News.

We understand that Conn Linn is already busying himself looking to the selection of his successor in the State Senate. If the people of this district permit Conn Linn or any one who may be backed by him to become the next State Senator from the third district, they will only deserve the contempt of the people of the entire district. But Linn got his election by a gross deception, and we know the people of the district will not permit such a disgraceful performance to be repeated.

An editor may write complimentary notices of the people until he is black in the face and never a word of thank is received. But just let him overlook an item or fail to say a thing in terms as complimentary as his subject may think proper, and he becomes the meanest devil in the community. Of course, this does not apply to Trigg county. We are simply talking about the people other editors are compelled to contend with.—Cadiz Record.

Rev. J. B. McNeely was in the city Saturday. He has purchased J. S. Turley place near Starr and will make it his future home. He reports a fine prospect for fruit at his place.

INQUIRY INTO NIGHT RIDERS

Federal Jury to Follow Up Case Against Tobacco Growers.

TWELVE INDICTMENTS FILED

One of the Men Accused Before the Federal Grand Jury at Covington is a Kentucky State Legislator, and it is said that some are members of the Board of Control of the Burley Society—Night Riders Are Now to Come in For an Investigation, and it is said that interesting developments are expected.

Cincinnati, N. Y.—Twelve men of Dry Ridge, Ky., one of them a member of the legislature, have been indicted on charges of conspiracy in restraint of trade by the special federal grand jury in Covington investigating operations of the Burley Tobacco society. They are: John S. Steers, state legislator; Harry Simpson, A. J. Webb, J. S. Carter, Hugh L. Conrad, F. K. Conrad, R. L. Conrad, J. W. Calender, John Caldwell, William Mulligan, Marion Bennett and Isaac N. Conrad. All are said to be members of the Burley Tobacco society.

Three counts are named in the indictments, which allege that on Nov. 26, 1907, W. T. Osborne attempted to ship four hogheads of tobacco from Dry Ridge to Cincinnati and the accused men intimidated Osborne and the station agent at Dry Ridge.

It is said that some of the accused are members of the board of control of the Burley society. Further investigation to be made by the jury will cover the night rider depredations with which the name of the Burley society has been linked, and according to officials more indictments probably will be returned.

Government agents have summoned a large number of witnesses to appear, most of them being victims of the Night Riders in 1908. Among them are several women from Maysville and vicinity. District Attorney Tingley has been sick for some time and the investigation will be in the charge of Assistant District Attorney Davidson and Harry W. Hogeland, a secret service man connected with the office of Attorney General Wickersham, who had charge of the fourteen detectives used in gathering evidence against the Night Riders. It is understood that some of the best known tobacco growers in Kentucky and a number of prominent politicians will be called before the grand jury.

TWO DOCTORS HELD

Further Developments in Louisville Insurance Swindle.

Louisville, Ky.—The feature of the indictments that were handed down by the Federal grand jury in the "graveyard" insurance swindle was the return of true bills against two physicians who have not heretofore figured in the case.

They are Dr. John C. Rogers and Dr. Christopher C. Shott, and they are included with John J. Keane, T. T. O'Leary and Patrick J. Needham, who were arrested two weeks ago, in one general indictment. It is alleged that the five defendants sought to defraud the insurance companies in that they conferred together to make up, send and present to said insurance companies and other companies, for the purpose of obtaining insurance, the applications of persons for such insurance who were wholly unfit because of the condition of their health. It is charged further that the physicians furnished medical examination reports for alleged applicants they had never seen.

M. P. DEBOE

Deboe, a prominent physician, was one of the defendants in the insurance swindle case. He was arrested along with several other physicians and businessmen. The case involves a large sum of money and has attracted considerable public attention.

TO IMPROVE THE CIVIL SERVICE

Commission Working On a New Promotion Examination.

TO PRODUCE HONEST RESULTS

The Plan Being Worked Out by General Black's Commission is Designed to Give Better Satisfaction, at the Same Time Producing Honest Results—When the New York Custom House System Has Been Purified, the Commission's Attention Will Be Turned to Several Other Great Customs Houses.

Washington, D. C.—The civil service commission, the treasury department and the collector of customs at New York have for the last six months been working hard on the preparation of a new promotion examination, designed to give satisfaction and produce honest results. This is the statement made by General Black, chairman of the commission, to the chairman of the house appropriation committee, which is preparing the big legislative appropriation bill. When the New York custom house system has been purified the same thing will be done with the several other great custom houses.

According to General Black the government employees in the classified service have increased from 14,000 in 1883 to 234,940 at the present time. Of the 161,000 persons examined last year 120,000 passed and 42,000 were appointed. There is in addition 132,000 government employees not in the classified service. The interesting statement was made by General Black that once in every seven years the entire personnel of the classified service is changed.

"Of the total of 234,000," he said, "one-seventh changes every year." This seems to give the lie to the old statement about the classified service that "few die and none resign."

Since the classification of the fourth-class postmaster's influence, General Black told the commission, has been entirely removed from the consideration of the committee. Whether he is popular or unpopular is not passed upon. Mr. Tawney, chairman of the committee, seemed much surprised. "Then no matter how unpopular an applicant may be in the community in which he lives and with the people that he must serve, he is given the place if he stands highest and furnishes the best facilities for transacting the business," he observed.

"That's right," rejoined General Black, "if he comes No. 1 on the list, that is true. I do not know how you are going to help it."

"Well," asked Mr. Tawney, with a grin, "do you think that practice followed right along would be conducive to harmony in the community in which a man performs this service?" Mr. Black replied that he did not know.

HOW IT WAS DIVIDED

Senator Conger Gives Further Testimony in That Bribery Case.

Albany, N. Y.—Senator Benjamin Conger testified that Senator Aldrich demanded $5,000 for the assembly rules committee killing bridge legislation in 1901. He said this demand was made upon Frank Conger's department by Aldrich. Frank Conger, he declared, thought this exorbitant and only two members of the rules committee got $1,000 each. The $5,000 package was divided among some of the members of the internal affairs committee, and another $1,000 went to a member of the bridge committee, not a member of the rules or internal affairs committee.

The Girl From the Effete East

BARRINGTON was completing his first year of practice when Theodore Tuppenheim arrived in Knuckleville. Mr. Tuppenheim was selling stock in the Charitable Gold Mining company at 5 cents per share, price to advance to 10 cents at the end of thirty days. Incidentally he found time to foster in Barrington's bosom the spirit of discontent which ten months' fruitless waiting for clients had engendered. If he were a clever, clean cut young man like Barrington, did Barrington know what he'd do? Move west. He wouldn't fritter away his time in a mossbacked New England hamlet where people looked down on a fellow just because they'd known him all his life and could remember when he was a little shaver and went with patches on his trousers. No, sir. He'd just gather together his earthly possessions and take the first train for Gilt Gulch, Nev. There was the coming town; there lay the opportunity for an able young man to rise. No reason in the world why he should not be in the United States senate within five years. That would be coming some. Well, everybody and everything came some in that country. Why, sir, where the thriving city of Gilt Gulch now stood there had been less than two years since naught but sagebrush and alkali. And now look at it—just look at it! Six thousand inhabitants and more coming by every train! Simply couldn't get houses up fast enough for 'em. Had to camp out in tents. And every blamed one of 'em making money. Why, sir, you couldn't find a bootblack in Gilt Gulch who was worth less than fifty thousand!

This vision of wealth and political prominence was quite too much for Barrington. He adjusted his affairs in Knuckleville, which was no very difficult matter, took tearful leave of numerous relatives and of a certain pretty damsel, who was not yet a relative, but had rashly promised to become one whenever Barrington's income should suffice for the support of two persons, and hid himself to Gilt Gulch, promising to send souvenir postcards from every municipality he passed through on the way.

Now, underneath the lurid exaggeration with which Mr. Theodore Tuppenheim had clothed his narrative of the rise of Gilt Gulch there lay a respectable substratum of truth, and the combination of Barrington's ingenious introduction to persons financially prominent in Gilt Gulch, which Mr. Tuppenheim procured for him, resulted in his speedily establishing a thriving practice. For the most part it was work in connection with the location of mining claims, and, besides numerous fees in cash, Barrington acquired several claims of his own, which he disposed of profitably.

In brief, at the end of a year Barrington had waxed so prosperous as to feel himself warranted in marrying. The Knuckleville Weekly Times announced editorially that it understood that young Mr. Barrington, for whom its readers would remember, the Times had predicted a brilliant career when he hung out his shingle in Knuckleville, was now one of the leading men in the west, and the other village maidens were openly jealous of Susie Cutler, whose good fortune it was to be married to a millionaire.

But Susie herself had no illusions. She even refused to permit Barrington to come east for the marriage. Her childhood lessons of thrift and economy had taken deep root in her mind, and she would not, she said, have the price of a round trip railroad ticket thrown away. If Barrington felt that he must spend the money, let him buy a cabinet organ or a second-hand piano for the front parlor. They would be married in their own house at Gilt Gulch and after that take a little wedding trip to Colorado Springs or maybe Denver. Perhaps, being a prudent damsel, Susie desired to have a glance at Gilt Gulch before she committed herself irrevocably. At any rate, matters had been thus arranged, and the date set for the wedding being but two days away and a due to arrive that afternoon, Barrington was in the state of ecstasy appropriate to such circumstances. It was in this moment of supreme happiness that misfortune befell him.

The work Barrington had been doing requires to be performed with great accuracy; otherwise it is not only valueless, but may be the occasion of great loss to the client. Now, it is possible that Barrington possessed genius. People who have that, you know, are apt to be careless as to details. Perhaps it was merely that being deeply in love, he could not concentrate his mind upon his work. However that may be, Hartford, the attorney whose office was next to Barrington's, had discovered in the course of an investigation of the records that Barrington had filed documents containing serious errors. He spoke to Barrington about it in a perfectly friendly way. Barrington received his kindly admonitions with a contempt which he was at no pains to disguise. Why should he pay heed to the remarks of a man who wore baggy trousers and long hair and played faro, to say nothing of becoming intoxicated now and then? He knew well enough what inspired these critical observations. Hartford was jealous of the prosperity which Barrington had so rapidly achieved. Let him stop caviling, said the virtuous Barrington to himself, and seek success by leading a sober life, as he did.

Feeling that he had been insulted, Barrington thereafter confined his communications with Hartford to a curt "How are you?" accompanied by a barely perceptible nod when they chanced to meet. It was with a good deal of surprise, therefore, that Hartford, glancing up from his rather dilapidated desk as he heard the door open, perceived Barrington entering his office. One had not to look at Barrington twice to be convinced that he was badly frightened. His eyes, which ordinarily regarded those about him with an air of easy toleration, were wide with terror, and his well chiseled features, customarily wearing an air of placid conceit, were now white and drawn. His manner toward Hartford was no longer supercilious. All his carefully constructed attitude of dignity had vanished.

"You've been in this part of the country longer than I have, Hartford," said he. "I want your advice as a friend, you know."

Hartford nodded and withdrew his pipe from his lips.

"Sure," said he succinctly. "What's the row?"

"Why, you see," said Barrington, "it seems that in filing the papers for Jim Busby on that last mining claim of his I made a slight error. I have been doing a large business, you know, Hartford—a very large business—and it was inevitable that I should make a mistake occasionally. It seems that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of this purely technical slip and have jumped Busby's claim, and he is very much exercised about it."

"I should think he might be," Hartford observed.

"Yes," repeated Barrington, "he is much exercised and quite unreasonable about it. He came into my office a few moments ago and demanded an explanation. Of course I couldn't tell him anything except that it was just a mistake such as any man might make, and he said I was lying to him. He said I was too smart to make a fool break like that and that I was in with the gang that were trying to do him out of a claim that would have made him rich. I argued with him the best I could, but it didn't budge him. He said he didn't see that it made much difference, anyhow, whether I was a fool or a knave, because either way I hadn't any right to live, and he wound up by saying that he'd just go down to the Jolly Dog and get a few drinks to put him in the right frame of mind and then he'd come back and reduce the membership of the Gilt Gulch bar by one."

It is significant of Hartford's broad and tolerant temperament that he did not remind Barrington that he had previously predicted such a catastrophe as had now befallen. Nevertheless a slight glimmer of amusement stole across his face.

"So you want my advice, do you?" he asked.

"I should appreciate it very much," said Barrington.

"Well, you shall have it," said Hartford facetiously, rapping the bowl of his pipe against the heel of his shoe.

"If Jim Busby were out gunning for me and I couldn't shoot any better than you can, and I had a comfortable little sum saved, as you have, and there were a pretty girl in New England who didn't know any better than to love me, as she does you, I'd go east in the half past two train, and I wouldn't hurry back."

"But the trouble is," Barrington explained, "Susie—Miss Cutler, that is—she'll be here on the train that gets in at 2:50. The trains pass on the first siding out, you know. The fact is we are to be married day after tomorrow at noon. You'll pardon my omitting to send you an invitation, won't you? It was quite unintentional. I've been so busy."

"Oh," Hartford broke in, with a deprecatory wave of his arm, "you need not apologize. It's just one of those little mistakes a busy man is bound to make every now and then. I haven't Busby's disposition. I'll forgive you."

Then Hartford looked at his watch and found that it was twenty minutes past 2.

"You'll have to move lively, my boy," he said. "Keep an eye open for him, and if the coast is clear take the 2:30. If it isn't, walk over to Sand City and take the next one there."

"But about Susie," Barrington remonstrated.

"Pshaw!" growled Hartford. "That's easy enough. Leave a note for her."

with the station master, telling her to go back to Colorado Springs and you'll meet her there. If you don't have time to write a note, have the station master tell her you've been called away on a life and death matter and that she's to go to the hotel and wait until you send her word. Don't you worry about the girl. She'll prefer a slightly delayed wedding to an expedited funeral. Hurry up now. You've just about time to make it."

As he slipped down the main street of Gilt Gulch on his way to the station Barrington caught a glimpse of Jim Busby's gaunt profile as he stood at the bar of the Jolly Dog, his back toward the entrance. Barrington's indolent heart rejoiced as he reflected that the ten mile walk to Sand City would now be unnecessary. It was just twenty-eight minutes past 2 when he reached the station. He gave the necessary instructions concerning Susie to the station master and rushed out upon the platform. But the train which made up at Gilt Gulch was not yet ready to depart. A freight car had left the rails, blocking the track. Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, and still the obstruction remained. Barrington grew uneasy. Jim Busby might at any moment deem that he had imbibed a quantity of liquor commensurate with his contemplated task and begin to search for him. But at the end of twenty minutes, to his great relief, the perspiring train crew succeeded in replacing the derailed car, and the freight train pulled slowly out upon a siding. Even as it did so Barrington caught sight of the 2:50 train as it rounded the curve just beyond the station.

A moment later Susie Cutler, her trim little figure set off by a skillfully tailored gray traveling suit and her face wearing the look of determination befitting a girl who had just completed a journey nearly across the continent alone, descended to the platform of Gilt Gulch station. Barrington rushed toward her joyfully. Within three steps of her he encountered an obstacle—a very serious obstacle. This was nothing less than the muzzle of a revolver. Behind the revolver stood Mr. James Busby.

"Now, young man," said Mr. Busby, "we'll attend to your little matter, and we won't be long doing it."

Then Busby became suddenly conscious of a voice, evidently feminine, proceeding from some point in his rear and of the light pressure of a hand upon his arm.

"Do you know," said the voice, "it's dreadfully careless of you pointing that thing at anybody so. Why, it might go off."

"Turning about, Busby looked into the placid features of Susie Cutler. He decided unhesitatingly that, notwithstanding some freckles and the tendency of the nose to turn up, it was a rather pleasing face to view.

"So it might," said Busby slowly. "So it might."

"Well, then, stop aiming it at Har-

Mr. Barrington," she commanded. "You make me nervous."

"Fact is," said Busby, "I was sort of planning to shoot Mr. Barrington."

He had lowered his weapon and spoke very calmly and deliberately.

"What?" shrieked the girl. "You have the audacity to stand there and tell me you mean to commit a cold blooded murder? Where are the police? A splendid place this must be to live in, where a man goes out to kill another as coolly as he'd eat his breakfast!"

"That's the way with all you folks from out Boston way," grumbled Busby. "You're always getting murder and the administration of justice mixed. I ain't going to murder him. I'm going to execute him. He's done me dirt, and if he ain't killed he'll do somebody else dirt. So for the good of everybody he'd ought to be shot. What do you care any way? Ain't no relative of yours, is he?"

"Why, no," she answered in some confusion, "he isn't a relative exactly—that is, he's—"

A gleam of comprehension shone in Busby's eyes.

"Come to think of it," said he, "I heard something about his being going to get married. Be you the girl?"

She nodded.

"Yes," she answered simply, "I'm the girl."

"Then," said Busby, "it's clear enough to my mind that in interfering with this execution you're preventing me from doing you a great favor. Howsoever, if you stick to it that you don't want him shot and if you'll take him out of Nevada and keep him out—"

The girl did not wait for him to finish. She transferred her grasp from Busby's arm to that of Barrington, who during the preceding conversation had stood silent, his face white, his limbs trembling, cold sweat beading his forehead.

"Come, Harry," she said imperiously. Meekly, with bowed head and downcast eyes, Barrington suffered her to lead him aboard the train, which was now, the track being clear, about to move eastward.

Jim Busby sat down upon the edge of the platform and burst into a roar of laughter. Long after the train had disappeared around the curve below the station the station master found him there, his broad shoulders still shaking with merriment.

"Well, you doddering idiot," said the station master, "what's the joke?"

"Oh, ain't he going to get his all right, though?" queried the mirthful Busby. "Did you hear her 'Come, Harry,' him and snake him aboard the train like he'd been a puppy hitched to a string? He got out of being executed, but he's getting a life sentence, and that's a whole lot worse."
